“A sweet nose of Maraschino cherry plus touches of earth and smoke before flavors of dark cherry, earth, and smoke which finish broad and medium-long. This is a light-bodied, well put together, easy to drink Pinot for everyday or an afternoon on the patio.”

Russian River Valley Pinot Noir $35 and Under

Angeline is the bargain label for Santa Rosa's Martin Ray Winery.

This one's a winner—on the lighter side. It's basic but very solid, with bright red berry and a silky grip at the end.

Good luck finding other Russian River Pinots at this price.

“Continues this winery’s streak of offering a good value under this label. The wine is dry and silky, with pleasant cola, rhubarb, coffee and cherry flavors that are offset by crisp acids.”
