

2005 Martin Ray Diamond Mountain Cabernet Sauvignon

93 POINTS

“Made from 100% varietal grapes, it’s deep and dense in black currants and chocolate, with forest notes of wild herbs and lavender. New oak provides even richer levels of smoke, caramel and vanilla. Now through 2013.”

2005 Martin Ray Diamond Mountain Cabernet Sauvignon

88 POINTS

“Complex spicy, peppery aromas turn tight and firm on the palate, where the loamy currant and cedar notes fold in. Drink now through 2016.”

92 POINT MOUNTAIN RESERVE WINES

92 POINTS! MARTIN RAY CABERNET SAUVIGNON

DIAMOND MOUNTAIN DISTRICT RESERVE 2004 $60

Modern tannin management has yielded a lush, lusciously soft wine, beguiling in blackberry and cherry pie filling and mocha flavors that are almost sweet. But the finish is thoroughly dry. - S.H.

92 POINTS! MARTIN RAY CABERNET SAUVIGNON

STAGS LEAP DISTRICT RESERVE 2005 $50

Rich, soft and immediately appealing for its luscious array of flavors. What's not to like about blackberries, cherries, raspberries, chocolate, cedar and smoky vanilla? The tannins are very fine, giving the wine a silky, velvety mouthfeel. - S.H.

86 POINTS

“Tightly wound, intense and woody, with cedar the most evident flavor.”

2003 Martin Ray Diamond Mountain Cabernet Sauvignon

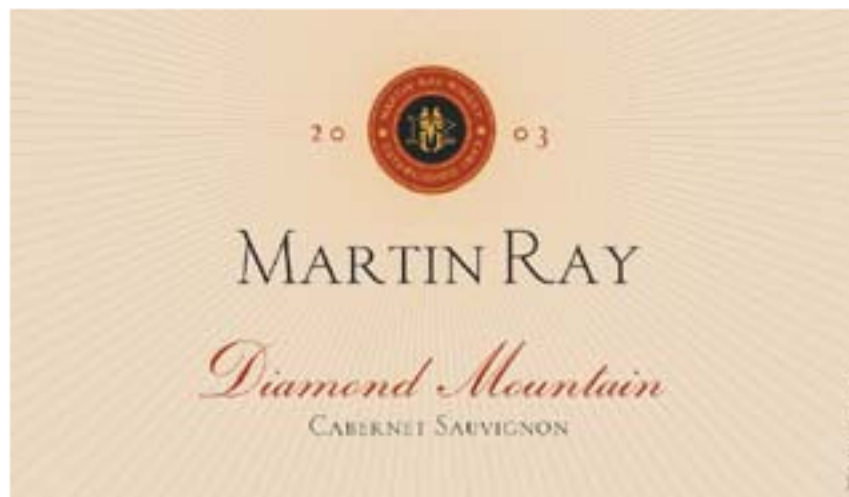

“Aromas of blueberry and mulberry underpinned by vanilla. Dry, quite tannic palate with low acidity and a spicy, vanilla, medium-bodied character; toffee-like finish. Take this to the grill.”

– Santé Magazine, March/April 2007

2003 Martin Ray Diamond Mountain Cabernet Sauvignon

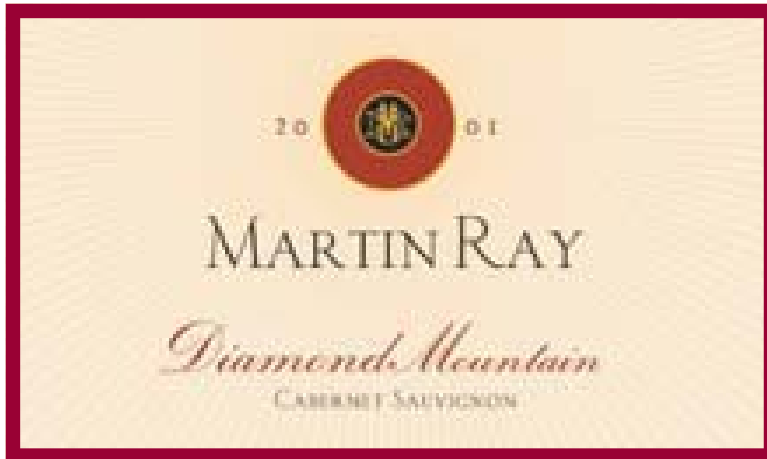

“Has big, ripe, sweet aromas of almost raisined fruit, sweet petroleum (think Pennzoil, and Grand Marnier). Very ripe, mouthfilling flavors dominated by black raspberry liqueur and sweet smoke are laced with good acidity and well integrated tannins and are broad, long and quite persistent. The wine has good presence and is well integrated, structured, and balanced. Very Good. BEST WINE.”

2003 Martin Ray Diamond Mountain District Cabernet Sauvignon

89 One Star - “Nicely defined and fairly energetic young curranty fruit gets a nice boost in complexity from glimmers of black soil and stones in the nose, and these same elements of minerals sit just beneath cassis and carefully-matched oak in the wine’s very well-focused flavors. Controlled in its ripeness and never hinting at excess, this wine succeeds by virtue of proportion rather than power, and its neatly fit spine of tannin ensures a half-decade of positive growth.”

94 “I love this wine for its heft, polish and sheer razzle-dazzle. It wows with fruit intensity and flatters with decadence, yet never loses elegance and harmony. Rich in ripe, sweet tannins, and succulent in cassis, cocoa and smoky new oak flavors, it’s an ager. Drink now through 2015.”

Wine & Spirits

92 “Dense and saturated with purple plum and forest-berry fruit richness, this powerful cabernet has the cedar-frond character that some tasters associate with Diamond Creek. The floral tones of the fruit keep it bright, with red berry flavors coming up behind the dark chocolate tannins. A sophisticated cabernet built to age at least 10 years from the vintage.”

- Wine & Spirits Magazine, April 2005

Wine Spectator

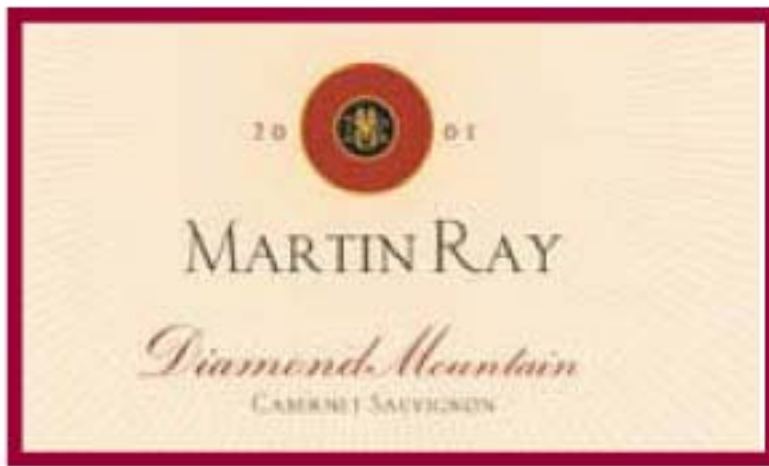

91 “A sturdy, muscular young wine, with dark chocolate, blackberry and currant flavors supported by a dense wall of oak and tannins. But given its size, it works, as the concentration and complexity keep the focus on the fruit, with a hint of vanilla bean on the finish. Best from 2006 through 2012.

- J.L., Wine Spectator, February 2005

89 “Medium to medium-dark ruby; attractive, forward, herbal, black currant and black cherry aroma with notes of green tea and sweet oak; medium-full body; rich, textured, supple, ripe black cherry fruit flavors with a firm backbone; full tannin; lingering aftertaste. This appealing wine shows distinctive varietal character and is accessible now. Highly recommended.”

- Nicholas Ponomareff, J.L. California Grapevine, February-March, 2005

“Opens with inviting currant, raspberry, blackberry, chocolate, and smoke on the nose. All repeat as lean flavors laced with significant tannin and finish long and medium-broad with some alcohol showing at the end. Well put together and it will improve with up to another year in the bottle. A good Cab to match with food.”

1995 Diamond Mountain District Cabernet Sauvignon

Wine Spectator

86 “Pungently earthy, with a mix of cedar, currant, mushroom and dry, chalky tannins that offer a touch of mineral, sage and dusty wood, making it a bit one-dimensional. Still, there are complex and distinctive flavors and aeration helped, giving the flavors a decent length. – 1995 California Cabernet retrospective. Drink now through 2009. 400 cases made.”
